

My Favourite Cartoon Show

Kashaf Eman (VI Orange)

There are many cartoon characters that teach us moral lessons but my favourite cartoon show is Tom and Jerry. The show is created by William Hanna and Joseph Barbera. This show first premiered in 1940 and has since become one of the best animated series of all time. It is a story of a mouse and a cat that tease each other, fight but also have the best relationship. Tom and Jerry never spoke but taught us many lessons. It is amazing how they create a funny moment without speaking. Tom and Jerry's fights and bond make everything funny without saying anything. This cartoon engages in a never-ending chase filled with slapstick humour and clever pranks. I recommend this show to every kid because of the moral lessons present in the show. This shows that even enemies can find a common ground. Tom and Jerry sometimes face common problems together. The second moral is that they never give up and try again and again and, in the end, they always win and solve their problems. The third moral is that we always fight with our loved ones or with those we care about the most. It is a timeless show that continues to entertain audience with its interesting story and loveable characters.
